PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Cluster Group Affiliation—Native American

Congressional Districts Served—Arizona 2nd

Purpose, Goals and Objectives—The purpose of this expansion project is to establish a full continuum of substance abuse services on the Pascua Yaqui Reservation in Sells, Arizona. The model continuum of care will provide culturally appropriate, holistic, multi disciplinary, community-based rehabilitation and day treatment services.

Target Population/Geographic Service Area—Adult (19 - 50) members of the Pascua Yaqui Tribe of Arizona will be eligible for treatment through this program.

Theoretical Model—Design of the planned system of care is predicated on a concept called the “Treatment and Recovery Circle”. This model places the client at the center, surrounded by all the resources of the care system. As treatment progresses, the client moves toward the outer part of the circle, becoming part of the community of care that constitutes the “Treatment and Recovery Circle”.

Service Providers—The Tribal Council, through its Alcohol/Substance Abuse Program, will be the principal provider of services to project clients. The Tribal Council will provide administrative and fiscal management services.

Services Provided—The proposal calls for provision of a full spectrum of substance abuse services including outreach, diagnosis/intake, outpatient, residential, day-treatment, methadone, case management, medical, mental health, aftercare, and follow up services.

Number of Persons Served—The proposed expansion will serve 550 clients in year one, 650 clients in year two, and 750 clients in year three.

Desired Project Outputs—It is anticipated that this project will produce a sustainable, full spectrum substance abuse treatment system capable of meeting virtually all the substance treatment needs of the Pascua Yaqui Tribe of Arizona.

Consumer Involvement—Through the Tribal Advisory Council, the entire community has been involved in the preparation of this proposal and will be involved in its implementation.

EVALUATION

Strategy and Design—Evaluators will adopt an “ecocultural” perspective in carrying out both process and outcomes evaluation of the expansion project (Walsh, Smith, Morales, and Seachrest, 2000). “Comparison group and other quasi experimental designs may be the best choice for overall program performance at particular points in time; case studies, focus groups, and other more qualitative methods are often more appropriate for probing program performance in order to detect problems in need of rectification. GPRA Core Client outcome data will be collected and compiled in accordance with established CSAT standards.”

Evaluation Goals/Desired Results—Specific goals and desired results of evaluation are no provided.

Evaluation Questions and Variables—Process evaluation questions will be couched in terms of the state process objectives: 1) Establishment of project administration and coordination; 2) Establishment of the Community Recovery Center; and, 3) Establishment of the Substance Abuse Day Treatment Program.

Instruments and Data Management—Beyond the GPRA Core Outcomes measures, data collection instruments are not specified.
